Philip Simmons, Master Craftsman (b.1912 ~ Daniel Island) is known for his mastery of ironwork and his love for the hammer and anvil.

The grounds of St. John's Reformed Episcopal Church, from George and Anson streets to Menotti Street, have been dedicated by the Vestry of the church for the development of a commemorative landscaped garden as a tribute to its member, Philip Simmons. They also established the Philip Simmons Foundation, Inc. to develop and maintain the garden and to preserve the legacy of this man and his craft.

The creation of a commemorative Heart Garden, located at the rear of the church, is a project that is in need of community support. At the present time, 1,023 bricks have been purchased for the perimeter pathways, but the project requires 3,300 to be completed.

During this time of giving, please ask yourself these questions:

- 1 Why not purchase a brick with the inscription of your choice to be displayed in the commemorative Heart Garden?
- 2 Wouldn't it be wonderful to be a part of the Charleston community or a visitor to this wonderful city and contribute to this project to honor Charleston's National Treasure, Philip Simmons?

Can you find it in your heart to buy a brick for the Heart Garden?

(It's only $25)
